THE OPENING CEREMONY

The Opening Ceremony of the Games of the XVII Olympiad was celebrated in the Olympic Stadium at 16.30 hrs. during the afternoon of 25th August.

The gates of the Stadium were opened promptly at 15.00 hrs. whilst the military bands of the Carabinieri police, the Italian Air Force, Finance Guards and Public Security police played the first marches to ease the spiritual tension of the gathering crowds.

At 16.26 hrs, the « Olympic Fanfare », repeated three times, greeted the arrival of the Hon. Giovanni Gronchi, President of the Italian Republic, who was received by all the Olympic and National Authorities.

In the meantime, the teams from 84 Countries present at the Games were assembled in the Olympic Village in their order of march. Immediately after this, the parade started along the Viale Tiziano, Ponte Milvio, Lungotevere Diaz up to the Stadio dei Marmi (a distance of 1.65 km). Divided up into teams, and preceded by a student from the Higher Institute of Physical Education carrying the placard indicating the nationality of the group, the athletes started the parade towards the Stadio dei Marmi punctually at the established time. At 16.29 hrs, the Head of the Italian State took his place in the Presidential Stand whilst the Band of the Carabinieri played the Italian National Anthem

A fanfare of trumpets played by the "Faithful Followers of Vitorchiano" announced the commencement of the parade of the athletes who marched to the accompaniment of military marches. The flagbearers of the teams saluted the Head of the Italian State and the other Government Authorities in accordance with the custom of each respective Country.

The Greek team led the parade by virtue of a privilege accorded to them in each Olympiad. The teams marched in ranks of four along the track of the Stadium and subsequently turned off to take up their positions in the centre of the grass field. After the Greeks, the other teams marched in parade order in accordance with Italian alphabetical order. The Italian team closed the parade. Each team took up its position in the space allotted to it, thus creating a final picture of brilliant but harmonious colour.

At the end of the parade, all the teams made their way to the oval space at the centre of the field and, maintaining their formation, took up their stand in the space behind a front line marked with the initials of each Nation. The name-board bearers and the flagbearers reached the marshalling points indicated in positions opposite their own teams.

The President of the I. O. C., Mr. Avery Brundage, invites the Head of the Italian State to proclaim the opening of the Games of the XVII Olympiad.

At the end of the marshalling, the President of the Organising Committee, Hon. Andreotti, accompanied by the President of the International Olympic Committee, Mr. Brundage, made his way to the podium situated at the centre of the field to pronounce his opening speech, underlining the ever-growing progress of the Olympic Games: "The five Olympic rings - stated the Hon. Andreotti in the course of his speech - which were initially the symbol of a generous and almost romantic intercontinental Unitarian aspiration, have already become a living sports reality which richly reward the efforts, the disappointments and sacrifices of all the pioneers of this modern crusade, strengthening the ties between men. There have been, are, and unfortunately will remain, all too many causes of contrast which hold the spirits of hundreds of millions of families in alarm, and all too often violence has got, and still gets, the better of reason and the exact vision of the interests of the peoples, which must necessarily be the interests of peace. Thus, all that which really contributes to directing the exuberant energies of individuals and of Nations towards peaceful, physical, and intellectual contest, should be appreciated, recognised, and upheld ".

Immediately afterwards, the President of the I. O. C., Mr. Avery Brundage, addressed the following invitation to the Head of the Italian State:

" I have the honour of inviting the President of the Italian Republic to declare open the Games of the XVII Olympiad of the Modern Era, revived by Baron Pierre de Coubertin in 1896 ".

Solemn Proclamation

In the solemn expectant silence of the Olympic Stadium, the Head of the State pronounced the ritual formula: " I proclaim open the Rome Olympic Games celebrating the XVII Olympiad of the Modern Era ".

The four bands then sounded the Olympic fanfare three times and eight athletes, escorted by a small group of sailors, marched on to the field carrying the Olympic flag, held horizontally. The flag was handed over to the sailors who slowly hoisted it on to the flagstaff. The band of the Carabinieri began to play the Olympic Hymn which was sung by the Choir of the National Academy of Santa Cecilia.

All the athletes present, limited in number to ensure the regularity of the parade, stood to attention upon the playing of the «leit-motif» of the Games and remained in that position until the flag had reached the top of the flagstaff and the choir finished their singing of the Hymn.

With the last notes of the Hymn still echoing through the air, the Mayor of Rome - followed by two uniformed valets - made his way up to the podium to receive the Olympic Flag, in embroidered satin, given in 1920 by the Belgian Olympic Committee, from the Mayor of Melbourne and the President of the I. O. C. The Olympic Flag will be kept in the Town Hall until the forthcoming Tokyo Olympic Games.

At 17.50 hrs., Giancarlo Peris, the last torchbearer in the Olympic Relay, made his entrance into the Stadium, preceded by three salvos of artillery and by the symbolic release of pigeons, whilst all the bells of Rome sounded joyfully.

Having circled right round the track, the athlete quickly ran up the 92 steps of the stairway, brought the Flame of the Torch up to the great green tripod located between the Olympic Flag, the Italian flag and the flag of Rome, and ignited the flame in the brazier.

The athlete, Giancarlo Peris, well aware of the solemnity of the moment, ignites the tripod in the Olympic Stadium during the Opening Ceremony.

After the ceremony of lighting of the Olympic flame, all the athletes once again stood to attention and the flag-bearers moved from their positions and stood in a semi-circle around the podium. The Italian flagbearer took up his position on the left of the podium.

The Oath-taking by the Athletes

Immediately after, the Italian athlete, Consolini, came out of the ranks, mounted the podium and, grasping the Italian flag with his left hand, pronounced the formula of the Olympic oath: "In the name of all the competitors, I swear that we will take part in these Olympic Games in loyal competition, respecting and abiding by the rules which govern them, in the true spirit of sportsmanship, for the glory of sport and honour of our Country".

The Choir of Santa Cecilia, accompanied by the Band of the Carabinieri, then sang the National Anthem. At the end of the Anthem, the command

The President of the Italian Republic proclaims the Opening of the Games.

The release of pigeons.

« Flags to your places ! » was given and immediately afterwards the marchout movement from the Stadium commenced, with Greece first and all the other Nations following in alphabetical order.

Italy closed the marchout, followed by the group of trumpeters, whilst the bands alternated in the playing of marches.

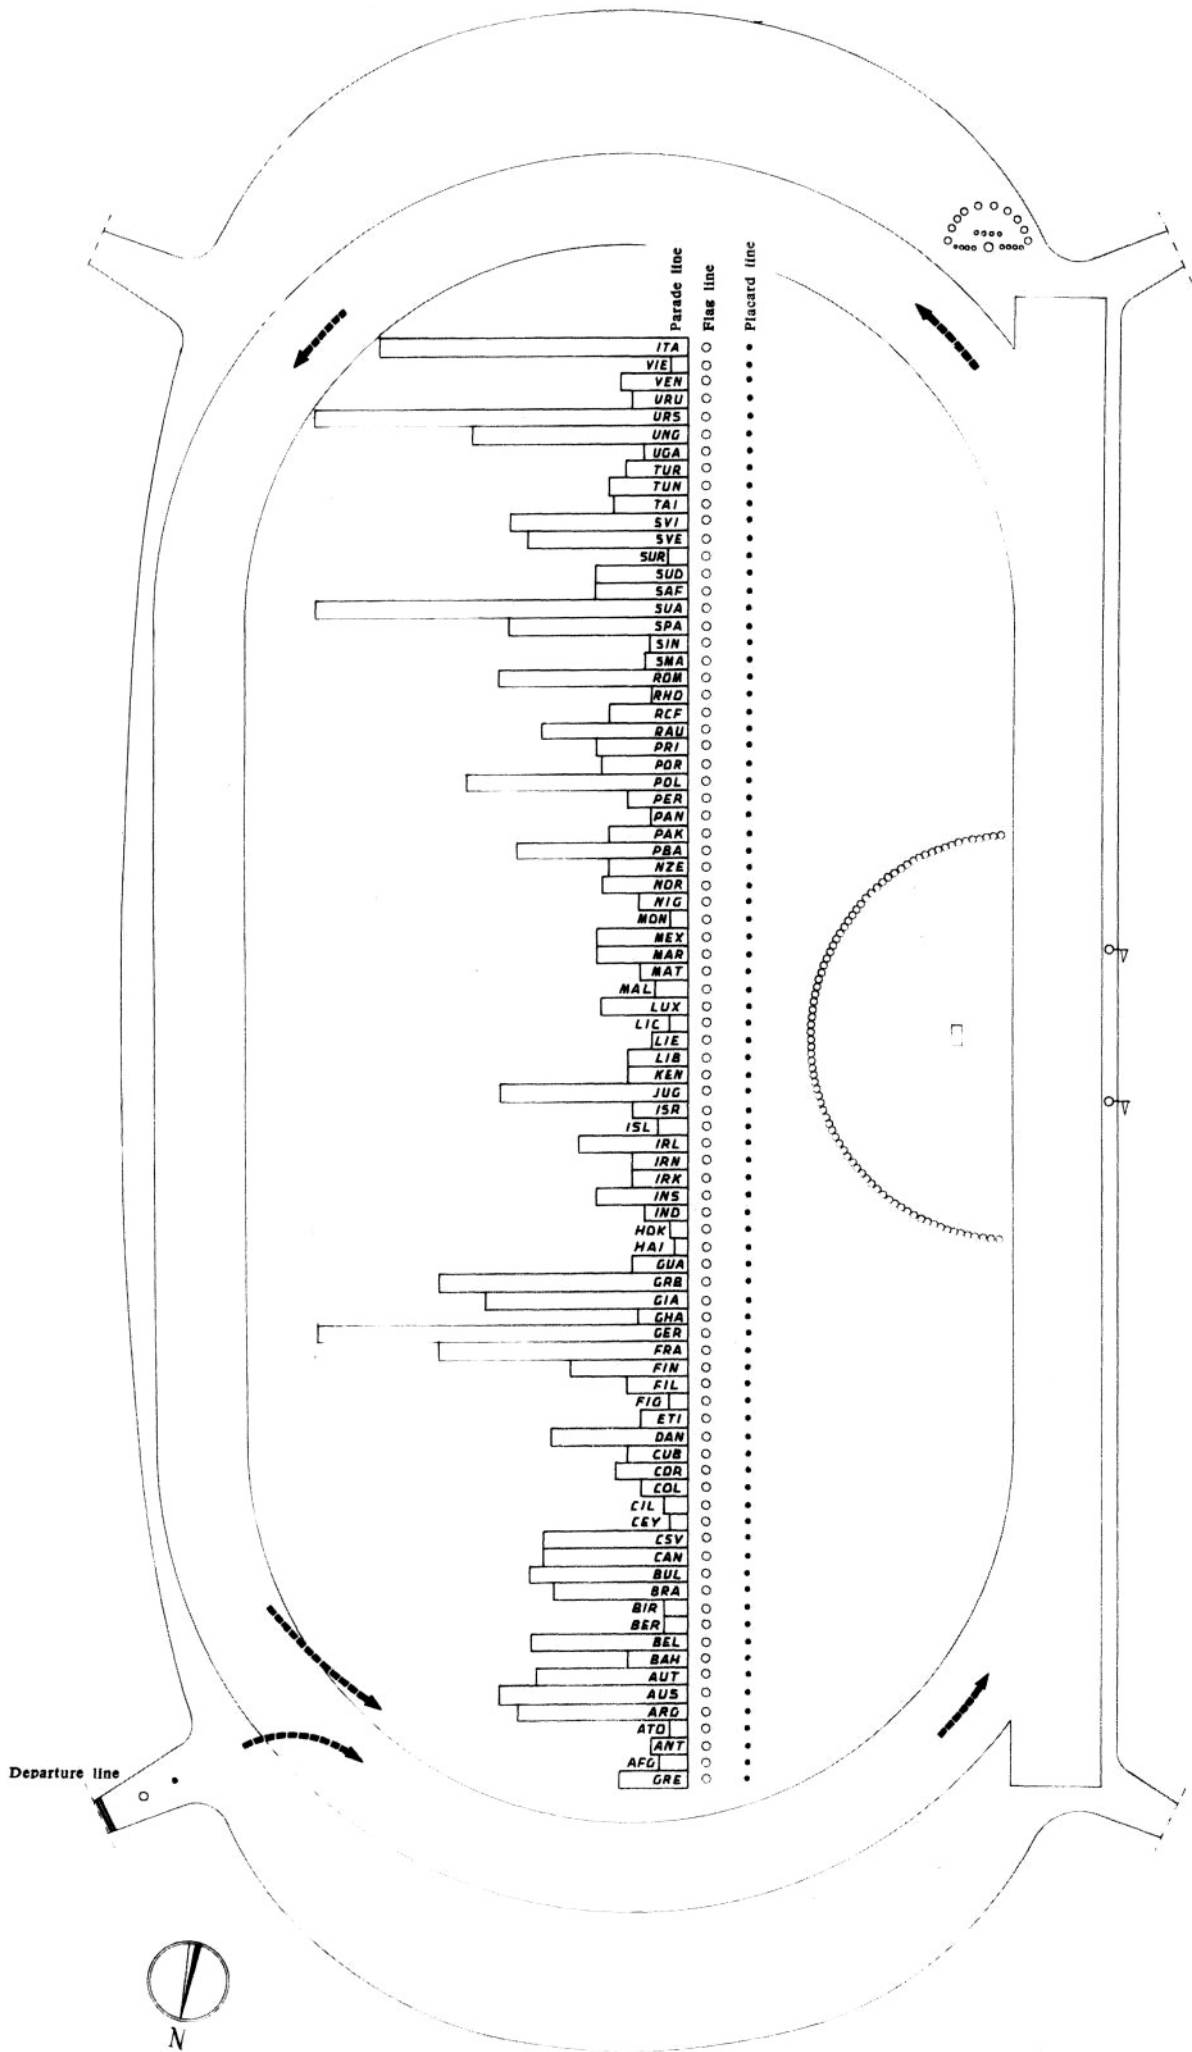

On the luminous indicator-board appeared the historic words of de Coubertin: " The important thing in the Olympic Games is not to win, but to take part, as the important thing in life is not the triumph but the struggle ".

TITLES, MEDALS AND STATISTICS

The number of gold, silver and bronze medals, awarded respectively to the first three classified in each event, are shown in Table no. 1. In effect, the Olympic competitions were 150 in number but, however, the number of medals, as shown in the table below, do not correspond to the number of competitions held for the following reasons:

a) the gold medals awarded to winners were 152 instead of 150 because of the fact that in two men's gymnastics events (pommel horse and long horse vault) there were two winners with equal points;

b) the silver medals awarded were 149 instead of 150 for the reason that there were two winners in the men's gymnastics, which resulted in two silver medals less being awarded, whilst, in the women's athletics, and namely in the high jump, an extra silver medal was necessary owing to two athletes gaining second place;

c) 160 bronze medals were awarded, instead of 150, because, in accordance with the technical regulations, a medal also goes to the 10 boxers who lost the semi-finals, as these losers are considered of equal merit for the third place;

d) an extra medal was awarded for the men's gymnastics (rings) because of there being two competitors equal for third place; whilst in the women's athletics, one bronze medal less was awarded owing to two athletes being classified second in the high jump as mentioned above.

The effective number of medals awarded to competitors for individual events, teams, as well as artificial classification is shown, subdivided per sport, in Table no. 2.

Statistics.

The data collected on the athletes entered and on their physiological characteristics, as well as their performance and on the results achieved, has permitted the preparation of certain statistics of particular interest.

In Table no. 3 will be found the height and weight of athletes winning the gold medal; whereas Table no. 4 shows the average weight and height of athletes entered, subdivided by sport and competition speciality, obtained from the analysis of groups of individuals examined for this purpose.

It is also thought opportune to show, in Table no. 5, the average weight and height of athletes, obtained from a study made by an examination of a good number of individuals coming from each continent.

THE CLOSING CEREMONY

The Closing Ceremony took place on 11th September in the Olympic Stadium, beginning at 18.50 hrs., immediately after the conclusion of the Grand Prix Team Jumping Event, the last of all the Olympic events.

All 84 flags of the Countries present at the Games took part in the march-past, these being carried by athletes chosen by the individual Heads of Mission. The flags were preceded by a placard showing the Country, which was carried by a pupil of the Higher Institute of Physical Education. Alongside the flagpole upon which the Olympic flag was hoisted, stood a picket of sailors in blue uniform; it was the same picket that had worn a white uniform during the Inauguration Ceremony.

The long procession of flagbearers, having marched past at a pace of 120 steps per minute, lined up in rows parallel to the Tribune of Honour, in the same positions which they had already occupied in the course of the Inaugural Ceremony. The march-past of the flags was accompanied by the playing of a number of marches executed by the Bands of the Carabinieri Police, of the Italian Air Force, of the Finance Guards and the Public Security Police. Meanwhile, on the indicator board appeared the words:— « Citius, Altius, Fortius ».

Upon conclusion of the march-past, three flags, that of Greece to the right, Italy in the centre, and to the left, that of Japan, to whom the organisation of the XVIII Olympic Games has been entrusted, were hoisted on three flagpoles.

As each flag in turn was hoisted, the National Anthem of the respective Nation was played.

Brundage's Invitation.

At the command « Flags Forward », the flagbearers moved from their positions and gathered in a semicircle on either side of the podium.

The President of the I. O. C, Mr. Avery Brundage, walked up to the podium and pronounced the formula of Closing of the Games with the following words: « In the name of the International Olympic Committee, after offering the President of the Italian Republic, the Hon. Giovanni Gronchi and the Italian people, the Authorities of the City of Rome and the Organizers, the tribute of our profound gratitude, we proclaim the Games of the XVII Olympiad closed. In accordance with tradition, we invite the youth of all Nations to meet in four years' time in the city of Tokyo, there to celebrate with us the Games of the XVIII Olympiad. May these take place in joy and concord, so that the Olympic Flame can continue to play its part throughout the centuries for the good of humanity in a manner ever more eager, courageous, and loyal».

The Flame of Olympia will be extinguished in the moving evening atmosphere of the Stadium.

The words of the President of the I. O. C. were marked by a triple fanfare of trumpets.

The extinguishing of the Olympic Flame was announced by a group of 10 « Faithful Followers of Vitorchiano » with silver trumpets who lined up on either side of the brazier and three times sounded the Olympic leit-motif, the joyful fanfare played throughout all the ceremonies.

Immediately afterwards, all the lights in the stadium were extinguished. Meanwhile, as the Olympic Flame, which for 18 days had kindled the hopes and victories of thousands of athletes, slowly flickered out against the sky, the Choir of Santa Cecilia, accompanied by the Band of the Carabinieri Police, sang the Olympic Hymn.

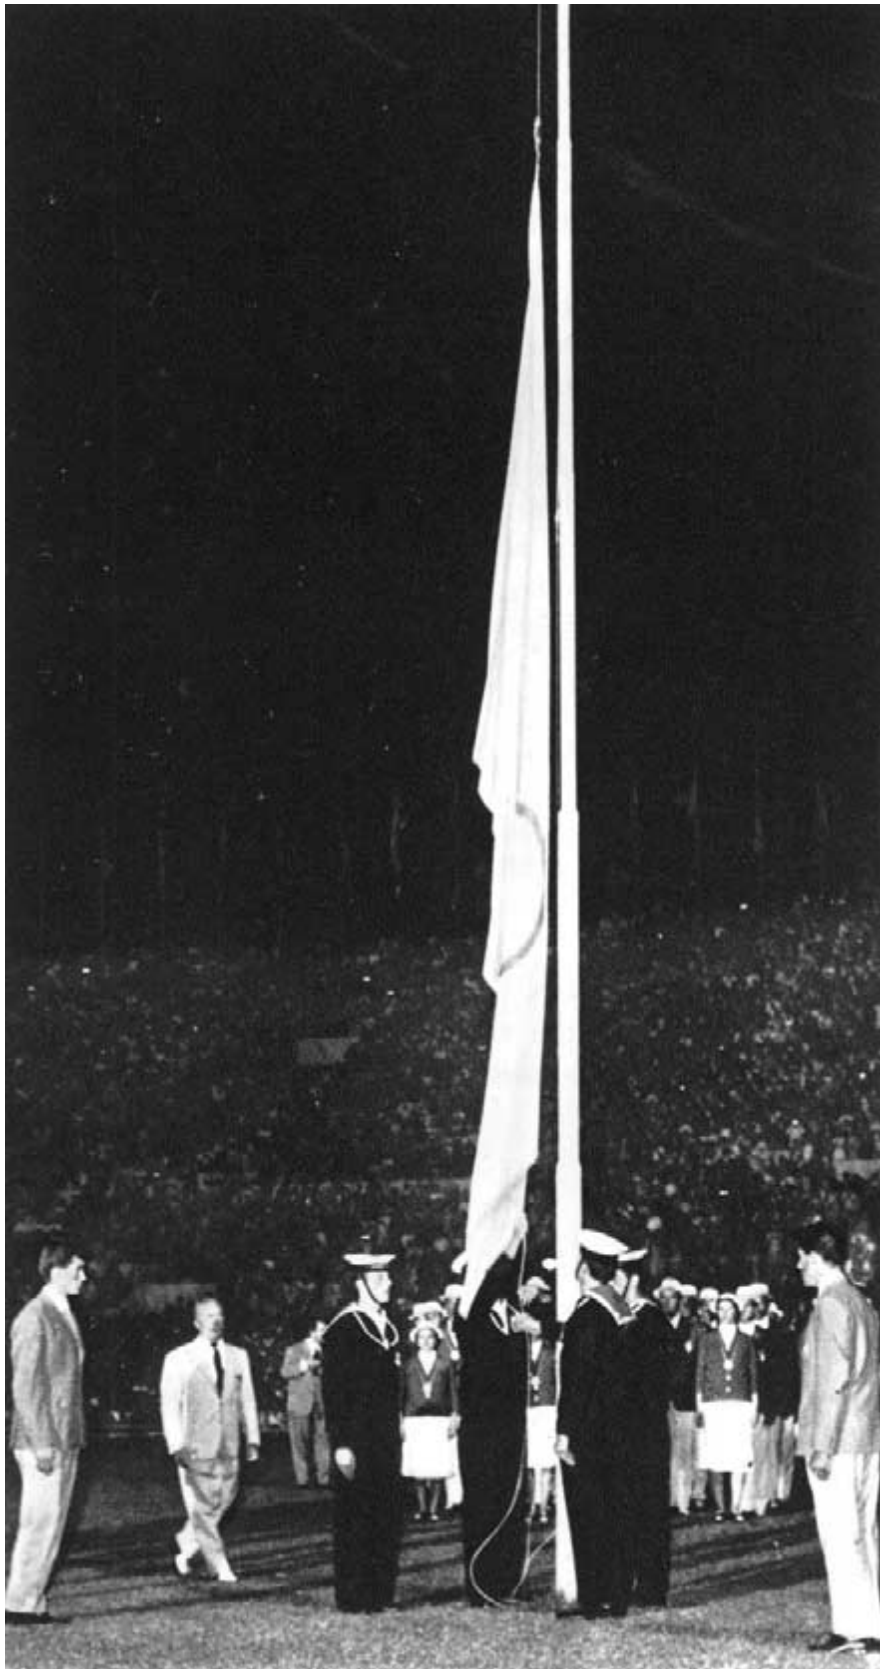

Successively, the Olympic Flag, which had been hoisted on the top right-hand side of the stadium ever since the Opening of the Games, was slowly lowered by four sailors. At the same time, five cannon salvos were fired from the slopes of Monte Mario.

Behind the tripod, now extinguished, five searchlights sprang to life directing their light into the sky. Then came the time, in the darkness of the stadium, for thousands of torches to light up amongst the crowd, giving the impression of a gigantic torchlight parade.

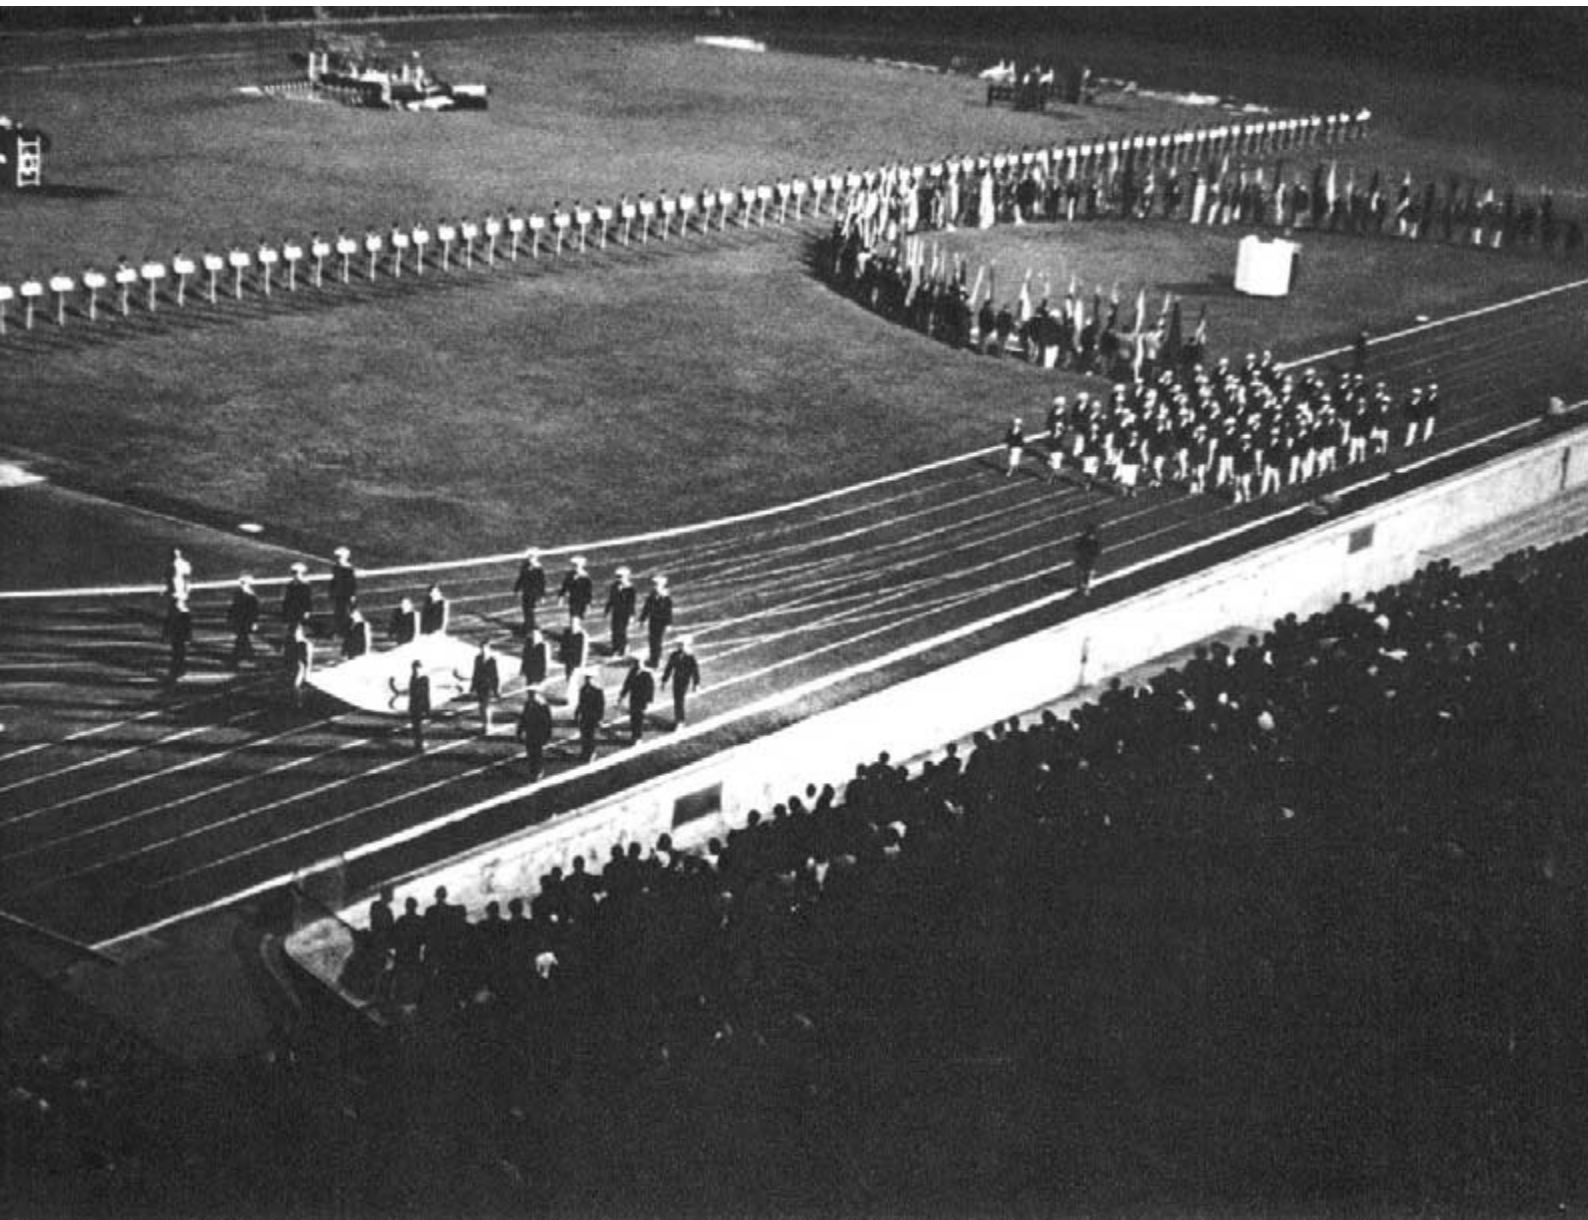

« Arrivederci a Tokyo »•

Rome, who had striven during the Games to identify her possibilities with the modernity of her sports installations, and appear young with the young people gathered there, fresh and welcoming, laying on one side momentarily the glory of her age-old memories, once the Closing Ceremony was over seemed to lose her Olympic aspect. But while the deep emotion caused at the extinction of the Flame and the sadness at the imminence of the end of the Games was still strong in the minds of all present, as if in comfort and reassurance, the words « Arrivederci a Tokyo nel 1964 » (We meet again at Tokyo in 1964) were flashed on to the vast luminous indicator-board.

The message was greeted with a terrific burst of applause from the crowd who understood that the close of one Olympiad does not mean the end of an epoch, but rather the opening of another, ever more joyful and brilliant.

Preceded by the musical score of the Olympic fanfare, the flag is lowered by four sailors.

The Olympic picket, entrusted to eight students of the Superior Institute of Physical Education, slowly makes its way to the exit from the Stadium.
